P9: Aspiring to achieve universal participation but recognizing the need to also lead by example;

5. Rationale for the proposal, if any.

The principle of intergenerational equity suggests it is time to consider the rights and interests of future generations of humankind as well as ocean life in preventing the further erosion of options for a healthy, productive and resilient ocean across generations. What we do today will affect the availability of options for the future.

It is similarly important to recognize the seriousness of threat and need for timely and urgent action to enhance climate resilience and prevent further loss of biodiversity or environmental degradation.

And while it is admirable to aspire to universal participation, it will be essential to construct the Agreement to enable progress even absent 100% consensus to prevent further environmental degradation and biodiversity loss.

Finally, we suggest specifically noting "sovereign rights" as these are different to sovereignty under UNCLOS and are noted in articles 4bis, 9, 19, 34 and 55 of the draft text.
